Forecast for Saturday 15 Jan 2022

Weather: A mainly clear and dry night although mist and fog are likely to form quite readily and may be slow to clear in the morning. Once they do clear it will be dry morning with a few sunny intervals but cloud will increase through the afternoon with the risk of light and patchy rain affecting the area by late afternoon and some mist and fog may form in the late afternoon again.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: 80% in the morning but 40% by late afternoon associated with light rain.

Visibility: Perhaps poor in the morning with mist and fog patches in areas but becoming good or very good visibility for most of the day until mid to late afternoon when it will be moderate or poor for a time in light rain or drizzle. Cloud bases will become broken at 500m later in the afternoon, perhaps scattered at 600m around northern areas where there will be a little shelter. Visibility may be poor again in any early evening mist and fog.

Forecast for Sunday 16 Jan 2022

Weather: Some early outbreaks of rain accompanied by some mist and fog will clear south later in the day with a fresh northerly airstream following, although feeling cold it will turn into a bright and dry afternoon with very good visibility.

Maximum wind: Northwesterly 15-20mph. Gusts 25mph in the early morning, easing later.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 600m: 60% in the early morning becoming 100% in the afternoon.

Visibility: Visibility will be poor around dawn with some mist and fog patches but as light rain affects the Brecon Beacons this will clear south and cloud will clear to leave very good visibility for the rest of the day. Cloud bases will be scattered or broken at 5-600m around dawn but will soon improve with very little cloud at all in the afternoon.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 3 rising to 6 Celsius.
At 600m: Plus 3 Celsius falling to Zero Celsius.
Freezing level: Above the summits falling to around 700m
